

ABSTRACT

Systems, methodologies, and other embodiments associated with a kiosk image processing system are described. One exemplary system embodiment comprises an image input device configured to receive a physical image and cause a digital image to be generated from the physical image. An image processing logic can be configured to process the digital image into a selected enlarged size. The example system can also include a large format print mechanism configured to print the digital image into a hardcopy image having the selected enlarged size.

5
10